RITTER'S PUNGENTS

Paragraphs That Touch Interestingly On All of the Important News Features of the Day.

To the Editor of The Observer:

What America needs more than any other single thing is a "clearing house" for distribution of laborers. Nor should it be the sole business of labor, per se, to look after this vital matter that concerns us all. It is the business of government. It is the concern of capital. It is an all American job.

Reported shortage of ministers is a crumb of comfort in showing that the problem of unemployment has not abated or affected the pulpit. The Boston Transcript complains bitterly of the "mediocrity" which characterizes Congress.

A professor of economics predicts that Liberty bonds will be at par within three years. Whether they will or not, they will pay their interest regularly, and will return one hundred cents on the dollar at maturity.

Thousands of idle coal workers, to take one specific example, could have jobs today and could have had jobs all summer and last spring if they would have worked at a rate of pay and production which would enable the industry to sell its "output." But they would not. And the mills and factories will not be able to respond with lengthened payrolls unless they can sell their product. And they cannot sell their product when it "costs" too much to get it out. There is more unemployment in this country due to refusal of labor to work at readjusted scales and conditions than is due to all other causes put together.

In Vienna, Austria, there are ten women to one man—and some of them are rich. They are advertising for husbands in the newspapers of that city. They should come over here and place their advertisements in American newspapers for results.

Economic readjustments will be here when there is a greater output at a lower cost—more economical production, which will permit more equitable prices and restore normal demand.

President Harding's speech to the unemployment conference is summed up in one sentence—"We are incontestably sound."

Of the 3,225,944 white persons in Missouri in 1920, 186,026 were foreign born. Total white population in Missouri, 3,225,944; native born, 3,039,918; of native parentage, 2,536,936; native born of foreign parentage, 309,064; native born of mixed parentage, 202,918; foreign born, 186,026. Mixed parentage refers to one native-born and one foreign-born. Besides the white population, Missouri in 1920 had 178,241 negroes, 171 Indians, 412 Chinese, 135 Japanese and 52 of other races. In the entire United States 94,820,916 of the 105,710,820 persons were white. There were 10,463,131 negroes, 244,437 Indians, 61,629 Chinese, 111,016 Japanese and 9,488 of other races. The negro birth rate has decreased since 1900. Of the white population in the United States in 1920, those of native parentage numbered 58,421,957; foreign parentage, 15,694,529; mixed parentage, 6,991,665; foreign born, 13,712,754.

Disintegration of the old Union once threatened disease and death to our country. But our nationality will never be lost by disunion so long as George Washington in the majesty of his peerless fame still lives in our hearts. One thing certain, when the investigation of the K. K. K. does begin the federal grand jury won't wear "bed sheets." Ousting of Senator Newberry, Michigan, on the grounds that his credentials are "stained with fraud and tainted by illegal expenditures," was demanded by the Democrats of the Congressional Committee of Inquiry on the Ford-Newberry election contest.

The amendments committee of the Assembly of the League of Nations, in reporting in favor of the retention of the celebrated Article 10, substantially indorses Mr. Wilson's declaration that it is "the heart of the covenant." The position of the small nations in support of it at Geneva emphasizes the fact that without an Article 10, or its equivalent, the small independent states of the world have little use for a league. They want some sort of protection, whether moral or physical, against "external aggression," and that is what Article 10 gives them.

It is self-evident that there is no need of a Ku Klux Klan organization in America in order to "terrorize" the American people. Hugo Stinnes, the big German master of industry, is coming to America on a visit to learn more about us. He says: "I have admiration for America because Americans do things in a big and personal way."

Economic peace will go far toward preventing war.

The St. Louis Star says: "There are worse men than Newberry in the United States Senate, and one of them is named Spencer."

If it is true that Woodrow Wilson "gets along with three servants" and a "used" automobile he must be a man of marvelous amiability, and a good mechanic as well.

An executive session of the United States Senate is one that is held behind closed doors and whose "doings" are an "open secret" before the correspondents file their "dispatches."

Thomas Edison predicts that in a hundred years from now "poverty" will be abolished. Somehow we can't get up much enthusiasm over the prediction. He slipped the date too far in the future.

Does your "system" measure up to present day requirements? If a man had to prove he was "working" for a living a lot of congressmen would be arrested for "vagranacy."

The United States Senate again commends itself to the affection of the people. Its revenue bill will reduce, from 3 to 2 per cent, the tax on chewing gum.

It may not be altogether absent from General Wood's mind that a former governor-general of the Philippines became president of the United States.

The 22nd day of September being the last day of summer left (to paraphrase the poet) blooming alone. Our best acknowledgments are due an extraordinarily beautiful season. May autumn be its worthy successor.

Now we know why the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan wear masks! Among other things they have a "book to sell."

Directors of a dissolved banking corporation at Crete, Illinois, are held responsible for the $400,000 loss its depositors dividends in a financial concern and others suffered through the cashier's wheat speculations—a liability that should be enforced of tetter against "dummy" bank directors who do not direct.

What is a true conception or "idea" of God, immortality of the human soul, life and duty?

If the "dividends" in a financial concern or bank are very large usually there's something wrong somewhere.

Secretary Hughes says America fought for the rights of the oppressed. Ambassador Harvey says America fought to save her own hide. President Harding says America fought for the freedom of France.

Now that the Stokes divorce case has been disposed of, the public may hope that the equally "evil-smelling" Stillman case eventually will come to an end and Little Guy Stillman will be recognized in truth, fact and in law as the "legitimate" child of the millionaire banker Stillman (his father) who tried to place his innocent little son in a "false light before the world" in order to disinherit him in law.

History is made every 24 hours. Not all of it is lasting, but the lessons and impressions of the fleeting day should be read by all. The newspapers furnish the "medium" of instruction that is needed by grownups as well as children. Through their columns one can gain a liberal education. No one ignorant of the affairs of the day is well educated. Hence a knowledge of current events is an obligation that rests upon every good citizen. It is one of the greatest of our educational needs.

COMPARED TWO WARS

An Old Holt County Veteran Makes Some Interesting and Instructive Comparisons.

At the recent meeting of Meyer Post, G. A. R., in honor of the 83d birthday of their comrade, A. W. Van Camp, one of its members gave some comparative figures relating to the World War and that of the Civil War, and the speaker was requested to publish the same in the Sentinel. He stated:

That General Pershing had a total of 621,405 in the Argonne-Meuse and Sedan front. His line of battle was 20 miles in length, and his deepest point of penetration was 11 miles. Pershing's casualties were 115,529, or 18.4 per cent.

That the St. Mihiel sector battle was the first in which only Americans were engaged, and was opened Sept. 11, 1918. In this campaign the 83d Division, in which there were many Holt county boys, took part, and they had many killed and wounded. In this campaign this division's casualties were 8,000 or 22 per cent, including the Argonne-Meuse and Sedan engagements.

In the Argonne-Meuse and Sedan campaigns, the 83d Division, of which Company L, of Holt county, was a unit, lost 27 per cent in killed, wounded and missing.

Pershing had in line in the Argonne-Meuse campaign an average of 20,000 men per mile, and had eight times more than Meade had at Gettysburg.

In the battle of Gettysburg, Meade had a front of four and a half miles, and a penetration of one mile. Meade's casualties were 22,834 or 27.9 per cent. Meade had about 20,000 men to the mile.

In the battle of the Wilderness, Grant had 118,000 men, the largest army in any battle on the Union side during the Civil War. Grant's line of battle was six miles and his penetration was one mile. He had 19,600 men to the mile. The casualties in the Wilderness were 17,666 or 15 per cent.

In the battle of Franklin, Hood had 75,000 men and Thomas had 68,000. His line was about four miles and penetration seven-eighths of a mile, or about 17,000 men to the mile. The Confederates lost 40 per cent and the Blues lost 32 per cent.

The Confederates lost 12 generals killed and wounded, and the Union army lost five. More ranking generals were killed and wounded in this eight hours' battle than were in the casualty list during the four-year World War.

The total of the World War army was 3,782,818. The casualties in the World War were 293,070; killed in action, 34,844; wounded, 215,423; died of wounds, 13,960; from disease, etc., 28,843.

The Union army in the Civil War totaled 2,778,399; under 16 years of age, 844,801; under 18 years of age, 1,151,438; there were 2,169,798 men that were under 21 years of age.

Missouri furnished 140,678 men in the World War. The total casualties were 11,000. The total killed was 1,270; died from wounds, 1,512; wounded, 7,951; missing, 267.

Holt county furnished 563 men to the Union army, and 710 men in the World War.

The first Holt county soldiers to arrive overseas in France were: Lt. Harris E. Petree, serial squadron, and Lt. Ray Stevenson, Field Artillery, both of Oregon, and Jesse Borchers, of Bigelow.

Reginald Hinde, of Oregon, of the signal corps, was the only Holt county boy in the Chateau Thierry battle.

The total casualties of Holt county in the World War were: Company L, killed, wounded and died from disease, 40; from the ranks of miscellaneous enlistments, killed, wounded and disease, 33—total, 73—Holt County Sentinel.

TAX AT BOTH ENDS

The Leading Jefferson City Paper Takes Up the Activities of the New Constitution Syndicate.

By default the voters of the state permitted the cities to put across a constitutional convention. We mean that the organized efforts of a few special interests raised the money and circulated the propaganda to enable the calling of a convention. In Sunday's Globe-Democrat the Hyde-Atkinson scheme is made public.

From the Atkins firm two delegates-at-large are to come, John Morgan Atkinson and David W. Hill. Think of Waldo P. Johnson and a score more like him in the convention of 1875 and then think of John Morgan Atkinson, and you can judge the clean cut language of the present constitution, with its limitations of power, as against a document written by Atkinson and his ilk. Johnson was a broad guaged lawyer of varied experiences from the U. S. Senate down.

Think of a taxing system from a man like Johnson, and then think of one written by Atkinson. To the same voter one thought would be enough. The present move for a new constitution was born with the view of opening the gates for taxes. W. P. Evans in the Globe-Democrat has given facts. Money, more money has been the slogan. It is well known that in a caucus of Democrats the day before the last Democratic state convention, that Atkins, the representative of the present constitutional convention force, openly advocated every move in the way of increased taxes, that Hyde has put in force. Fortunately for the Democrats, he was the only one advocating full assessments of farms and farm property. Other suggestions were denominated by him as "rot." And by the new constitution syndicate he and his law-partner, Hill, are suggested as delegates-at-large. But to cap the climax, Hyde, who has lowered the taxes on corporations, and on the income of the wealthy, and raised the taxes upon the farmer and poor man, says that he will not call the convention until he has consulted with the Constitutional Convention syndicate.

It was generally understood that Hyde and Atkinson had agreed upon the same plank as to taxation, but the Democrats turned a deaf ear to Atkinson's pleas and at the last moment the republicans had to redraft their plank. From the public press we see that they are yet together. Hyde will not call until he talks with Atkinson's Constitutional Convention Syndicate. He will then call the convention. In the meantime the syndicate is busy naming the delegates, both those at large and those from the districts. Names are being suggested by the syndicate right now. Farmers, watch these fellows. Ask them where they stand on taxation. They may lie to you, but if he advocated a new constitution at this most inappropriate time, you can mark him down as a candidate of the syndicate. He will say he is for progress. His progress means opening up the right to tax at both ends.—Jefferson City Democrat-Tribune.
